Project ToNoWaste: Addressing Food Loss & Waste Through Commitments and Solutions in the Food Distribution Industry

EROSKI SCOOP (EROS)

By engaging in a multi-stakeholder debate on food waste and reflecting on the input and recommendations of various stakeholders, the retail sector can gain valuable insights and strategies to reduce waste, improve sustainability and meet consumer needs.

Possible lines of approach for the sector:

- Multisectoral Collaboration to lead to a more comprehensive understanding of the causes and solutions to food waste and the implementation of more effective strategies.
- Promote Transparency in the supply chain.
- Play an important role in consumer education and awareness raising by providing information on how to reduce household waste and promote responsible purchasing.
- Participate in food donation programmes to social organisations.

- Reflect on Use-by/Best before Dates and Labelling to encourage standardisation and clarity of information on food packaging.
- Encourage more sustainable and environmentally friendly packaging that extends the shelf life of products.
- Demonstrate a clear commitment to reducing food waste.
